

Summary and Breakdown of the Available
Methamphetamine
Related
Federal Grants

Dear Fellow Montanan,

In Montana we have a growing epidemic wreaking havoc throughout the state - a methamphetamine epidemic. Meth is destroying families and communities, and disproportionately impacting Native American tribes. The purpose of this guidebook is to highlight available federal funding that can be used to fight this epidemic. These funding opportunities encompass a multifaceted approach to combating the methamphetamine epidemic. Grant topics include addressing addiction prevention and treatment, enhancing law enforcement and border security efforts, and combating the methamphetamine epidemic among Tribal communities.

Methamphetamine use in Montana has dramatically increased over the last decade. From 2011 to 2017, Montana has seen a 415% increase in meth related cases and a 375% increase in meth related deaths. Tragically, meth use is linked to more violent crimes and robberies than any other drug. Between 2010 and 2016, violent crime increased by 35% in Montana. Law enforcement believes this increase is primarily meth related. These statistics are disturbing and emphasize the need for us to work together to combat this epidemic. I will continue to work tirelessly to see an end to this devastating epidemic.

Finding the correct resources for your research or community program can be an overwhelming task. This guidebook will hopefully serve as a starting point to discover what federal resources are available to combat the methamphetamine epidemic. My Senate website (www.Daines.Senate.gov) features a “Grants and Resources” page which provides more details regarding grant eligibility and the grant proposal process. If you have any questions, please do not hesitate to contact my Washington, DC office at (202) 224-2651.

Sincerely,
